

Study Techniques

Below are various study techniques that you can choose to use based on your specific learning style. Add a few of these to your repertoire of study tools and watch your next test grade improve.

Technique/
Learning W. TJ -0.0

			division. Interphase, Prophase, Metaphase, Anaphase, and Telephase.
Acrostics Good for auditory learners	When you need to remember a list in a certain order.	Create an invented sentence or phrase with a first letter cue: The first letter of each word is a cue to an idea you need to remember.	P lease E xcuse M y D ear A unt S ally. Sequence in solving or evaluating math equations: Paranthesis, Exponents, Multiplication, Division, Addition, and Subtraction.

Loci Good for kinesthetic learners	For lists (that don't necessarily have to be in order).	Select any location that you have spent a lot of time in and know well. Walk around this area, touching places as you remember each item. Repeat to remember. During the test, picture each place you went.	Erikson's Stages of Development: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> *Closet= trust/mistrust (infant) *Dresser= autonomy/shame (toddler) *Bed= initiative/guilt (preschooler) Etc. ...
--	--	--	--

Loci (cont.)

For lists (that don't

Good for visual learners

